PREFACE

The Marquette Law Review is pleased to present the following remarks of United States Supreme Court Chief Justice William H. Rehnquist. The remarks, presented during the Marquette University Commencement Address of May 22, 1988, accompanied his receipt of an honorary degree of Doctor of Laws from the University.

Although the Chief Justice's remarks do not concern the present or past state of the law, they do provide valuable insight on maintaining balance in life — a subject particularly relevant to the all-consuming practice of law. We hope that the remarks will provide a needed respite from the daily pressures of the practice of law.
